The following text is for test item number 3 – 5.

I love animals. Let me describe my most favourite pet. It is a dog named Joey. Joey is an adorable brown dog that has a few black spots spread across his body and tail. Even though Joey has a very strong body frame, he has a very gentle face and is always a friendly dog to those whom he knows. If a stranger approaches out house, however, Joey can get very aggressive. He always barks loudly to attract our attention to the approaching stranger. There is one thing that I especially like about having this pet – I know that my little friend will always be there for me to protect me or my family. Therefore, in some way, Joey gives me a feeling of protection.

Joey loves food, especially bones. Once we have fed him his regular food, we always give him a few bones on which to chew. Joey can actually spend whole afternoons chewing bones because he loves them so much. Whenever Joey is worried, he looks at us with desperate eyes that appear as if he is sad. He does so while wagging his tail from one side to the other. Whenever we see him exhibiting these signs, we immediately prepare a quick meal and some bones for him to eat.

Ask a Fox for Its Skin

Long ago, there lived a young man, called Lisheng, who had just married a beauty. The bride was very wilful. One day, she had an idea that a coat of fox fur would look pretty on her. So, she asked her husband to get her one. But the coat was rare and too expensive. The helpless husband was forced to walk around on the hillside. Just at the moment, a fox was walking by. He lost no time to catch it by the tail. “Well, dear fox, let's make an agreement. Could you offer me a sheet of your skin? That isn't a big deal, is it?”

The fox was shocked at the request, but she replied calmly, “Well, my dear, that's easy. But let my tail go so that I can pull off the skin for you.” So, the delighted man let her free and waited for the skin. But the moment the fox got free. She ran away as quickly as she could into the forest.

The story can be used to illustrate that it is hard to ask someone to act against his own will, even in a seemingly negligible manner.

Why the Bat flies by Night

A bush rat called Oyot was a great friend of Emiong, the bat. They always fed together, but the bat was jealous of the bush rat. When the bat cooked the food, it was always very good, and the bush rat said, "How is it that when you make the soup it is so tasty?"

The bat replied, "I always boil myself in the water, and my flesh is so sweet, that the soup is good."

He then told the bush rat that he would show him how it was done. So, he got a pot of warm water, which he told the bush rat was boiling water, and jumped into it, and very shortly afterwards came out again. When the soup was brought, it was as strong and good as usual, as the bat had prepared it beforehand.

The bush rat then went home and told his wife that he was going to make good soup like the bat's. He therefore told her to boil some water, which she did. Then, when his wife was not looking, he jumped into the pot, and was very soon dead.

When his wife looked into the pot and saw the dead body of her husband boiling, she was very angry, and reported the matter to the king, who gave orders that the bat should be made a prisoner. Every one turned out to catch the bat, but the bat flew away into the bush and hid himself. All day long the people tried to catch him, so he had to change his habits, and only came out to feed when it was dark, and that is why you never see a bat in the daytime.

11. Which problems-solutions go with the story?
    - □ The bat hated the bush rat – The bat helped the bush rat to cook soup.
    - □ The bat wanted to cook tasty food – The bat cheated on the bush rat.

Deorro	:	So, do you have any holiday plans for the summer?
Brown	:	Yeah, I'm thinking of going to Wales for a week.
Deorro	:	So, what's the plan? Are you travelling around, or staying in one place?
Brown	:	I've rented a cottage. I'm just planning to do some hiking—Wales is quite mountainous.
Deorro	:	Ooh! Sounds very exciting. Not my thing, though—I prefer a more relaxing holiday.
Brown	:	What about you then? Do you have any plans?

Deorro	:	Well, I'd like to go somewhere hot and just lie on the beach for a week. I don't really care where, but I'm not sure if I can get the time off work.
Brown	:	That's too bad.
Deorro	:	Are there any beaches in Wales?
Brown	:	There are, but you might not like them very much.
Deorro	:	Oh, how come?
Brown	:	They're beautiful, but it can get very windy, and you wouldn't want to lie on the beach—you'd get cold!

The following text is for test item number 19 – 21.

I used to be an introvert. Instead of meeting people and greeting them, I would stand quietly and wait for them to greet me and introduce themselves. It happened until I started a parkour class. I did parkour & free running and I had done stunt jobs for tv commercials, performances, etc.

I opened up a parkour class and many kids joined our class. These kids who come to our class would typically be shy as they do not know anybody there. So, it is my job to make them feel welcomed. I was not comfortable with greeting people, but I had to force myself to greet people and make people feel welcomed in our class.

Soon, as I started to feel comfortable with greeting kids, I started to greet and talk to people my age. And now, I am no longer a shy and quiet introvert. I realized that everybody is shy and are waiting for someone to greet them and talk to them. So, I figured why not let me help them by making the first move and greet them. By doing it, I prove that building self-confidence is important.

My favourite thing has to be my new tablet. It is not an expensive one. It costs only two million rupiahs. I'm proud because I could buy this tablet with my own pocket money. I saved the money for a year and finally my dream came true. I could buy my own tablet.

My tablet is quite stylish. It is red with a clear screen and free anti-scratch. It's light and quite small, so I take it with me everywhere. I'm always writing messages to friends. It also has a good quality camera. It takes really good photos so my friends like to use my tablet when we do group photos. Besides, it's big enough. It has 64 GB memory card. I do college work on it. I also save many videos of my favourite movies. I often download films onto it and watch them in bed. I play games and listen to music on it as well. Since I'm always on it anytime, my mum says I'm addicted to it. She doesn't allow me to open it during dinner time though, and it made me sad.
